GEORGE W. JOHNSON

Bishop of Midway First Ward 1938-1944. George W. Johnson was born July 9, 1901, a son of Nels Joseph Johnson and Mary Ann Orgill. He was born in Heber City, at the site of the old Hatch Flour and Grist Mill, where his father was the miller. At the age of one, his parents moved to Midway, where they purchased the Flour and Grist Mill formerly owned by Mark Jeff; and here he spent his boyhood, learning the milling business from his father, and attending the elementary schools there, and coming up through the channels of the Church and the priesthood quorums.

He was the oldest child of a family of eight children, four boys and four girls. This was the second marriage of his father, and there was an older sister living from the first marriage. His early childhood and boyhood were spent mostly with his brothers and sisters as his companions, as they lived out of town and had no near neighbors. They spent many hours together with the mother reading good books aloud to her children and having them take music lessons and other cultural pursuits.

He always took an active part in Church being in the presidency of both the deacon and teachers quorums; and in his late boyhood was a counselor in the MIA under William L. Van Wagoner and also a Sunday School teacher. On November 9, 1921, he was called to serve a mission to the Central States where he labored until June 5, 1924, having many interesting and faith promoting experiences in that time under the presidency of Elder Samuel O. Bennion.

On August 13, 1924, he was married to Jennie Luella Pyper in the Salt Lake Temple, and to their union were born five children, three sons and two daughters. His children are: Max George, Georgia Dawn, Ruth Anna, Keith Pyper, and William Lowell. Keith died at nineteen months, and Ruth Anna was killed in an automobile accident at the age of eighteen years.

The first seven years of his married life he lived in Heber City in the Heber 1st Ward where he was Superintendent of the Sunday School for a number of years and also taught the adult class in MIA. He was also in the presidency of the First Quorum of Elders. Later he moved to Lakeview, Utah County, where he lived for one year and then he purchased the Jesse McCarrol home and farm in Midway and has resided there since that time.

He was sustained as Bishop of the Midway First Ward January 8, 1938, after serving as a counselor to Bishop Clark Bronson for some time and as a member of the Wasatch Stake High Council for eighteen months. The Ward had 525 members at that time. He was ordained a Bishop by Elder Joseph F. Merrill January 13, 1938, in Salt Lake City. He was ordained a High Priest by Elder George Albert Smith. His counselors who served with him in the bishopric were Charles E. Buehler and John H. Joost. The clerks were Clyde Pyper and Ernest Kuhn. He served for five years.

He has served continuously as a teacher in Sunday School Gospel Doctrine Class for 13 years and as a teacher of the Gospel of Jesus Christ since he was 18 years of age. He taught the MIA gospel adult class and priesthood quorums both in the ward and the stake; served on the Sunday School and MIA Stake Boards and is now teaching the Wasatch Stake Adult Aaronic Priesthood School, through five complete graduating classes.

He was chosen by the Wasatch Stake young people as the Honorary Master M-Man in 1955. At present he is teaching the M-Men and Gleaner Class in connection with his wife in the Midway First Ward. He has spoken to literally hundreds of funerals during his lifetime, beginning immediately upon his return from a mission and continuing during his lifetime.

His family honor and revere him. His two sons served in the armed forces, and a daughter and a son served missions for the Church. At present he is a well-known farmer and dairyman; and as a hobby he does sound recording and record making; active in many pursuits and enjoying his seven grandchildren at his home in Midway.

A TOUR OF THE MIDWAY AREA visiting such places as the famous Hot Pots, open craters filled with near-boiling water, Wasatch Mountain State Park, Utah State Fish Hatchery and many other points of interest is conducted by Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson, as a major feature of the Swiss Days Celebration. Midway Prepares For Swiss Days Celebration

MIDWAY — The echo of Swiss Yodeling coming from the tower of the Midway Town Hall fills the air and sets the mood for the annual Swiss Days celebration to be held Aug. 29, 30.

Final preparations are underway this week with the members of the Midway Boosters Club, sponsors of the celebration, setting up the booths for the Swiss Market Place, residents decorate homes and add final touches to their Swiss costumes.

The theme, support from the community, the typical Swiss setting and original activities help to make this one of the most successful celebrations in the state.

The Swiss market features genuine Swiss foods such as cheese, sausages, sauerkraut dinners, pastries, baked goods, homemade pies, cakes, scones and many other items.

Other events adding to the theme are a "Swiss Miss" and her attendants who reign over the festivities, Swiss folk dancing, parades, Swiss musical program, games, chuck wagon breakfast, arts and crafts, flower show and the popular tour of the Midway area.

Midway Honors George Johnson

In connection with Midway's annual Swiss Days, the Midway Boosters' Club have named their outstanding Citizen for 1984. Chosen for the honor this year is George W. Johnson, a life-long resident of Midway, and one who has given countless hours of service to neighbors and friends and citizens not only of Midway but of other towns in Heber Valley.

Mr. Johnson was born July 9, 1901 in Heber City, Utah. He was born in the little house east of town on Mill Road, where his father, Nels Johnson, was running the mill. His mother was Mary Ann Orgill, the oldest of 14 children, whose parents had come to Utah as immigrants from England.

When George was very small his father bought the flour mill in Midway, and the home where Doctors Ferguson now live. The family ran the mill and farmed the acreage there, raising pigs, cows, chickens, and farm crops. They also cut ice from the mill pond and buried it in sawdust for use in iceboxes in the summer. The children learned to work hard at an early age.

George had a busy active childhood, but was plagued all of his life by a blood condition which made any form of surgery difficult and also caused other problems. He attended school in Midway, then in Heber, getting there either by walking or riding a horse, or going by horse-drawn sleigh in winter. George was in high school during World War I, when the Government considered flour mills as an essential industry. They set up a quota for each one, and the mill was run 24 hours a day to meet the quota. George ran the mill at night and his father would run it during the day. This, of course, interfered somewhat with his education. The family was close-knit, and under their mother's direction, active in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

George served a mission call to the Southern States Mission, and served for 30 months in Arkansas, under somewhat difficult circumstances, since the church was the subject of much prejudice in that area. He walked many hundreds of miles, and had experiences which have stayed with him through his lifetime. He also became a man with firm convictions, wisdom, and compassion for his fellowmen. When he returned home he married his sweetheart, Jennie Pyper, and they began their married life in Heber. He farmed, worked in his father's mill in Midway, and was active in the old Heber First Ward. For a time the family lived in Lakeview, west of Provo, while he worked as a poultry buyer for Swift and Company and ran a small feed store. Five children were born to George and Jennie, three of whom still live in Midway: Max and Lowell Johnson, and Georgia Dawn Clegg. A small son, Keith, died in infancy, and a daughter, Ruth Anne, died when she was eighteen in an automobile accident.

George has served long and well in many capacities. He was a member of the Wasatch Stake High Council, a counselor to the Bishop in the Midway First Ward, and then Bishop of that ward for eight years. His wisdom, experience and good judgement were called upon many times in the giving of help and counsel to those who came seeking his advice. He served as a member of the Midway City Council. After the death of his wife, Jennie, he met and married Iola Jensen Starr, and together they were able to do considerable traveling for a time.

As a summary, he is a person who has natural talents as a teacher, and has been a powerful and persuasive speaker on many occasions. He was in much demand for many years particularly as a speaker at funerals and has lost count of the number to which he has spoken. He has also recorded many funerals and other events for people that they might be preserved and cherished. He is a man to whom his children have always come first in his life, and he has a great love and concern for many others around him, as well. His mind is keen and alert, and he reads a great deal, and studies and is constantly learning. He enjoys educational type tapes, and he greatly enjoys visiting with all who come to see him. He has contributed throughout his entire lifetime to the good and welfare of others, and we are honored to have him as Midway's Citizen of the Year for 1984.

Nels Joseph Johnson was born in 1870 in Peoa, Summit County and Marna Walters Johnson Elizabeth Moore at Coalville. After her death on June 8, 1898, Mary Ann Orgill March 22, 1950.

Mary Ann Orgill was born in Sanpete County, January 1, 1870, daughter of Mark and Rachel Orgill. She died March 26, Nels was the oldest son of C. Walters Johnson. His family moved to Heber City when Nels was five years old. He attended public schools in the early years.

in the hay fields. When he reached young manhood he obtained his first job with Thackers Sawmill at Strawberry. He worked until he became the engineer at the mill.

In the winter months he obtained a job in Hatch's Flour Mill and learned the milling business. When the plane sifter system was installed in the Heber Mill by the Barnard and Leighs Company, he was the first miller to learn to run this system. Then this same company installed the system in mills in Oakley, Kamas and Wanship. They hired Mr. Johnson to go to these mills and instruct other millers in the plane sifter system. It was during this time that he met and married Elizabeth Moore. They lived at Oakley, where he supervised these three mills. It was here that the couple's two children were born, Merne and Nels. Elizabeth died shortly after the birth of her son, and the little Nels passed away five months later. After the death of his wife and child he came back to Wasatch county to work in Hatch's Mill again.

Millers at Kamas became unhappy with their work and wanted to quit their jobs so Nels and his brother A. O. Johnson purchased the mill in Kamas and this became Johnson's Brothers Milling Company.

In 1900 Nels married Mary Ann Orgill. They lived at Hatch's mill until after the birth of their first son. In 1902 Nels and his brother purchased the Midway Mill from Mark Jeffs. This partnership continued some fifteen years. Then a coin was flipped to see who would take possession of the Midway Mill. The coin fell in Nels' favor. He paid A. O. the sum of $5,000 and gave him his share in the Kamas mill because the Midway Mill was considered a better location.

Midway Roller Mills drew on a large territory of Uintah Basin and Wasatch County, and friends that Nels had made in Summit County still patronized his business and did so until he died. Indians came from the reservation, and the government paid a percentage of the cost of grinding besides the toll the Indians paid so they would not be left waiting to have their grain ground. They came by the hundreds and camped overnight in the empty ponds and flat country south of the mill.

During World War I the mill ran day and night to produce flour for the government. This flour was packed in burlap sacks that weighed 140 lbs, when filled. The flour was shipped to Houston, Texas. People were rationed on the white flour they could use and had to purchase substitute flours. Mr. Johnson acted as government agent in this and made weekly reports.

He was in the milling business sixty years. He served as chairman of the amusement board in Midway, also as a county commissioner for Wasatch County. He owned stock in the Heber Mercantile and Heber City Exchange and was a director in the later concern until his death. He was a member of the Executive Council, Boy Scouts of America and awarded the first eighty-one badges given to Scouts in the county.

Mr. Johnson worked in his mill and supervised his large farm until four years before his death in 1950, at the age of eighty years.

Mary Ann Orgill was the oldest of fourteen children. Her family moved to Daniels Creek when she was eight years old. She was educated in the public schools of Wasatch County.

When Mary reached the age of fourteen, she began to do house work in various homes in the county. She received three dollars a month for her efforts. With this money she bought several items of furniture for her family, and helped buy clothes for her brothers and sisters. She continued on in this work until she was twenty-three years old. She met Nels J. Johnson when she worked in the home of President Abram Hatch in Heber. She and Mr. Johnson were married at her home in Daniels Creek, with President Hatch officiating. The couple made their home in the house provided for the millers close to the mill. They lived here until after the birth of her son. They moved to Midway in 1902.

Mrs. Johnson loved to garden and she had a large garden by her house. She also raised chickens and ducks, geese and turkeys to help supplement the family income.

She did fine sewing, making exquisite embroidery as well as tatting and crocheting. She sewed for her large family and made countless quilts that found their way into homes of brothers, sisters, children and grandchildren.

A little daughter was left to her husband at the death of his first wife, and she cared for her and shared her love and care with this child. A niece also was given this same care and love during the years she made her home in this family.

Mrs. Johnson loved books and music and recited many poems and sang many songs from memory. She loved The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints and was an active member. She was Relief Society visiting teacher for many years and headed the visiting teacher classes. She was the social science class leader for many years, and president of the same organization for eight years. She taught a missionary class in the Sunday School organization for about fifteen years. These services were performed in the Midway 1st Ward. Her marriage was solemnized in the Salt Lake Temple, September 24, 1920.
